

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In the display apparatus of the present invention, an anisotropic scattering film having scattering anisotropy is placed covering the display plane so that the relationship between a standardized input signal and standardized output luminance at any view angle

5 is averaged within a predetermined view angle range.